Moscow Peony is a bold and elegant perennial known for its striking blooms and stately presence in the late-spring garden. Its large, full flowers typically open in rich, cool-toned shades—often deep pink, rosy-red, or plush magenta—creating a luxurious burst of color that stands out beautifully against the plant's dark green, finely cut foliage. The blossoms are packed with petals, giving them a lush, dramatic form that makes them equally impressive in the landscape and in floral arrangements.
