Celebrating America, Community, and the Red, White & Blue

There are few traditions that bring a community together quite like a hometown Fourth of July parade, and this year's Town of Farragut Independence Day Parade was one we'll remember for a long time. With thousands of people lining Kingston Pike, families waving American flags, children eagerly waiting for treats, and neighbors celebrating our nation's birthday, it was a wonderful reminder of what makes East Tennessee such a special place to call home.

John H. Coleman Company was proud to once again be part of the celebration. Several members of our team volunteered part of their holiday weekend to represent the company and serve our community, helping make this one of our most successful parade appearances to date.

Leading the way was Walker Perry, one of our Comfort Advisors, who climbed aboard our restored 1946 yellow truck dressed as an American superhero. Waving the American flag and leading loud chants of "USA! USA!" Walker had the crowd cheering from start to finish and quickly became a favorite along the parade route.

Following close behind, the rest of our team spent the morning handing out thousands of ice pops to help families stay cool during the summer heat. On one of the hottest mornings of the year, it was a simple way to put smiles on people's faces and give something back to the community that has supported us for more than 80 years.

Thank you to everyone who came out to celebrate with us, and a special thank you to the employees who gave up part of their holiday to represent John H. Coleman Company. We are proud to be part of this community and look forward to celebrating with you again next year.
