Your water heater is an appliance we rely on everyday. In order to keep it running properly and efficiently a very simple "yearly" maintenance procedure should be performed. Water heater maintenance is one of the most important yet overlooked procedures by a homeowner. Everyday water is pumped into your water tank. At this time dirt, sediment and various minerals start to settle on the bottom. Depending on your water quality these extra particles can start to rob your water heaters efficiency and cost you money in the long run. The air intake screen allows proper air circulation within the unit, which is vital to efficient operation. Failure to keep this screen clean can result in a clogged air intake and loss of hot water due to an unlit burner. This can be found more often if your water heater is located in a small utility closet or laundry room. If you clean and maintain your water heater properly and regularly, you'll help extend its lifespan.

Caballero & Sons Plumbing wants to help keep you worry-free with plenty of hot water! Help relieve the stress of a possible failed water heater by signing up for our maintenance program. It is often recommended that you do not service your water heater yourself, but leave that task to someone who is more qualified.
