

Ryegrass seedheads/stalks

Ryegrass seedheads are in full production now. These seedheads are tough to cut so make sure to keep your mower blades sharp. Now is a good time to sharpen your mower blades if you haven't yet this year. Ryegrass seedheads don't easily decompose and you may notice how they will remain in your lawn over the next month or so.

From a distance you can see the ryegrass seedheads still present a month after being formed.

Ryegrass lawn in spring versus the same lawn in summer stress

