Justine Hunt is Senior Vice President of Talent at NTA Talent Agency, where she oversees the Theatrical Department representing actors and personalities across television, film and theater in Los Angeles and New York.

Justine began her career as a TV and Film agent at Herb Tannen & Associates, where she spent more than nine years developing and representing talent including three-time Emmy Award winner Brad Garrett (Everybody Loves Raymond), Alyson Hannigan (How I Met Your Mother), Giovanni Ribisi (Avatar), Emile Hirsch (Once Upon a Time in Hollywood) and Amanda Bynes (All That). She went on to spend 26 years as owner and partner of the management and production company Hines and Hunt Entertainment before returning to agenting in 2022.

Today, Justine represents an accomplished roster led by Daytime Emmy Award winner and current nominee Roger Howarth (Y&R) and Emmy and Golden Globe Award winner Brenda Vaccaro. Her clients also include Louis Mandylor (My Big Fat Greek Wedding franchise), Ian Cardoni, the voice of Rick on Rick and Morty, Aiden Turner (High Potential), and HGTV host and social media personality Steve Watson, known as “That Guy Steve From TV.” Her roster spans award-winning actors, established film and television talent, voiceover, hosting and emerging talent across traditional and digital entertainment.

With more than three decades in talent representation and management, Justine has built her career around identifying distinctive talent, developing long-term careers and creating opportunities across traditional and emerging entertainment platforms.
